Avon Freight Group attains BRC accreditation

Avon Freight Group has been attained the prestigious British Retail Consortium food grade accreditation.

The Redditch-based logistics company underwent 8-months of rigorous assessment training and checks to ensure it met the strict criteria needed, and has seen its hard-work rewarded with the awarding of the accreditation by the BRC. It means the company can now store food products in its warehouses, and add businesses in the supermarket and food supply chain to its ever-expanding customer base.

“For Avon to be awarded BRC accreditation is fantastic news for all our staff and customers. This means we have been certified by the accrediting body as having met or exceeded the high-levels required by this demanding, wide reaching and comprehensive standard. This recognition of our quality coupled with our high levels of service and flexibility will place Avon in a very strong position in our sector” said Simon Poole, managing director of Avon Freight.

“I would like to personally thank all of the Avon team for their hard-work, commitment and enthusiasm to gaining this accreditation. They all played their part and we wouldn’t have got there without any of them. Being part of the Palletforce UK pallet network has also helped us in our quest for BRC accreditation.”

Avon started life back in the 1970s offering services to Northern and Southern Ireland. These services continue today alongside our UK distribution, European & worldwide forwarding, courier and warehousing operations all from our 100,000 sq. ft. purpose built logistics facilities in Redditch. This enables Avon Freight Group to offer a comprehensive range of services to client.
